Solar energy is expected to account for around 14% of Switzerland's energy consumption this year. The trade body has called for a rapid expansion of energy storage capacity, backed by incentives that prompt owners to operate in a manner which strengthens the grid. A key reason for the popularity of home energy storage is a continuing decline in equipment prices which Swissolar estimated at $115/kWh for (see chart below). The prices for battery storage have continued to fall in recent years. The analysis in the report refers to new storage capacity Swissolar estimated the average price of battery storage systems at $115 per kilowatt-hour in , making them more affordable for homeowners. This cost reduction has spurred widespread adoption, allowing households to store surplus solar energy for use during low-sunlight periods, supporting Switzerland's energy balance provides information on domestic production, import / export, storage, conversion, own consumption, transport and grid losses and consumption of the various energy carriers in Switzerland on an annual basis. Anpassung der Heizwerte von Petrolkoks, Steinkohle und Since the Alps cover almost two-thirds of Switzerland's landmass and provide numerous large mountain lakes and artificial reservoirs that are suitable for hydro power, the country's electricity sector primarily depends on hydroelectricity. Solar power is best used during daylight hours, when demand Switzerland's solar PV market is expanding swiftly, with the International Energy Agency (IEA) reporting a leap from 1 GW of installed PV capacity in to 1.2 GW in . This momentum is bolstered by various incentives and a burgeoning interest in clean energy. Notably, the Swiss Electricity At its current rate, the Swiss Solar market is expected to register a Compound Annual Growth Rate of 5.1%. A range of policies and objectives have been put into place by the Swiss Government to ensure that this growth continues.
